AIA CES – Description & Objectives

The implementation of Student Centered Learning Environments (SCLE) can significantly impact how school facilities are designed and operated. The planning, design and use of SCLE's within the Ohio School Facilities Commission program will be discussed by local school district representatives. Learn about the overall process from early community visioning sessions to the final school where the facility works in tandem with the teacher and student for a more effective learning environment. Hear lessons learned from districts that have attempted to transform how education is being delivered in their school by focusing on how students learn.

Learning Objectives:

- Gain further understanding on the steps necessary to transform education within a school that impacts both the facility as well as how it is operated to function as a SCLE.
- Understand how some on-going or recently completed SCLE projects are attempting to implement their educational goals.
- Learn about the challenges and opportunities offered by SCLE.
- Know who to involve in the planning, design and implementation of SCLE in order to transform education for the 21st century.

Sir Ken Robinson On The Principles Of Creative Leadership

"Creativity is not some exotic, optional extra, It's a strategic issue." – Sir Ken Robinson
In this article, Sir Ken talks about making creativity a priority, leadership from the middle, and why in times of economic crisis creativity is an urgent imperative. Do you agree, disagree? What do you think?
