Project Overview

A. Project Description

The Vernon R. Alden Library serves the Athens campus as the central library facility; the building can seat 3,000 readers. The Ohio University libraries' collections contain over two million printed volumes, 2.3 million units of microfilm material, and 13,500 current periodical subscriptions. Alden Library was constructed between 1966 and 1969; it opened in February, 1969, with 550,000 volumes. The east and west wings, added to floors four through seven, were completed in June, 1972.

This project is a continuation of the overall improvements to the HVAC infrastructure of the facility. The building areas served by AHU 1 & 2 are targeted for this phase of improvements. The improvements will include new AHU's, distribution system replacements and direct digital control upgrades. Building finishes will need to be replaced as required. Additional areas served by other AHU's will be added as the project budget allows. The library is a critical facility for the university community. The A/E firm selected will take this into consideration when preparing the documents for this project. Allowance for HVAC system outages shall be designed to minimize impact to the ongoing library operations.
