AIA CES

This course is registered with AIA CES for continuing professional education. As such, it does not include content that may be deemed or construed to be an approval or endorsement by the AIA of any material of construction or any method or manner of handling, using, distributing, or dealing in any material or product.

Credit(s) earned on completion of this course will be reported to AIA CES for AIA members. Certificates of Completion for both AIA members and non-AIA members are available upon request.

Questions related to specific materials, methods, and services will be addressed at the conclusion of this presentation.

AIA CES – Description & Objectives

Qualification based selection (QBS) is the starting point for all professional design services. While each individual selection committee may be unique, learn what a cross-section of public owners look for when selecting an Architect/Engineer for their projects. Hear multiple perspectives from K-12 school districts, higher education institutions, state agencies, and contracting authority representatives. Learn the key points of a Statement of Qualifications (SOQ) and how to effectively present during an interview.

- Learning Objectives:
- Gain further understanding of the QBS selection process.
- Understand what owners pay attention to while reviewing SOQs.
- Learn how to effectively communicate using the 330 form.
- Know how to orchestrate an interview to win the job.

AIA CES – Description & Objectives

At some point during the pre-construction stage of a Design-Build (DB) project the Criteria Architect/Engineer is required to communicate the owner's design intent through design criteria documents. These design criteria documents are then transferred to the Design-Build team with the Architect/Engineer of Record, to further develop and implement. Learn what makes design criteria documents effective based on the complexity of the project and timing of the transfer of bridging documents to the DB team.

- Learning Objectives:
- Gain further understanding of pre-construction activities on DB projects.
- Know how to recognize the interplay of bridging documents and a project's complexity.
- Understand what level of detail to develop design criteria documents.
- Learn when the best time to transfer design responsibility to DB team.
